Monthly Sales Performance Report

Sample dataset for testing PDF ingestion, table extraction, numeric analysis, retrieval (Embedding / PageIndex), and chart-ready JSON generation.

Reporting period: January–March 2026 | Currency: IRR (Iranian Rial)

1. Executive Summary

Total sales increased throughout the quarter. March recorded the highest revenue, while January recorded the lowest. The figures below are synthetic and were created only for software testing; they do not represent a real company.

Metric	Value	Definition
Total revenue	12,450,000,000	Sum of sales revenue for the quarter
Total orders	1,245	Number of completed orders
Average order value	10,000,000	Total revenue / completed orders
Quarter-over-quarter growth	33.3%	March revenue compared with January revenue

Key observations

- March revenue was 5,000,000,000 IRR, which is 33.3% higher than January.
- The North region generated the largest quarterly revenue.
- Home Appliances was the top revenue category, while Accessories had the lowest revenue.
- The average order value is calculated from total revenue divided by completed orders.

2. Monthly Sales Data

This table is designed to resemble a spreadsheet export. Each row represents one month. Revenue and order counts are suitable for aggregation and trend charts.

Month	Revenue (IRR)	Orders	Units Sold	Returns	Net Revenue (IRR)
January 2026	3,750,000,000	375	820	18	3,660,000,000
February 2026	3,700,000,000	370	805	15	3,625,000,000
March 2026	5,000,000,000	500	1,110	20	4,900,000,000
TOTAL	12,450,000,000	1,245	2,735	53	12,185,000,000

Monthly trend interpretation

Revenue was almost flat between January and February, decreasing by 1.3%. It then increased by 35.1% in March compared with February. The full-quarter increase from January to March was 33.3%.

Net revenue is defined here as revenue minus the value of returned goods. For this synthetic dataset, returned-goods value is 5,000,000 IRR per return in January, 5,000,000 IRR per return in February, and 5,000,000 IRR per return in March.

3. Regional and Product Breakdown
